

How Has Protocol 23 of the Learned Elders of Zion's "Instilling Obedience" Manifested Today?

Sixbert SANGWA • July 26, 2024

As we approach the end of human history and transition to a new eternal status, it is important for the wise to delve into stigmatized knowledge to understand the influential forces behind biblical prophecies and the current apostate state of the world. In this context, a document known as the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion presents a comprehensive, Luciferian plan using agents to plot strategies for global takeover. Among its 24 protocols, Protocol 23, titled "Instilling Obedience," outlines a sinister strategy to subjugate humanity under a dictatorial regime. For the Christian community, understanding these strategies is crucial to remaining vigilant and discerning in these trying times. As it says in Ephesians 5:11, "Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them."

Reducing Luxury and Encouraging Humility

The first provision of Protocol 23 suggests that to cultivate obedience, luxury should be curtailed and humility should be instilled among the populace. This strategy involves diminishing the production of luxury goods to elevate moral standards, which are perceived to have been corrupted by the pursuit of luxury. The Protocol states, "By this we shall improve morals which have been debased by emulation in the sphere of luxury."

Historically, various political and economic policies have aimed at controlling the consumption of luxury goods. For instance, during the Soviet era, there was a significant focus on limiting luxury and promoting modesty among citizens to ensure adherence to state ideologies. This trend is also evident in some modern regimes that impose strict controls on luxury imports and promote austerity, often under the guise of fostering national unity and discipline.

In contemporary society, the growing movement towards minimalism and sustainable living can be seen as a reaction to the excesses of consumerism. While this development is generally positive, there is a danger of such movements being co-opted by authoritarian regimes to control economic activities and reduce the power of large-scale industries that might challenge their authority. This forced humility often leads people to respect authoritative leaders at the expense of moral values, simply to earn a living or maintain opportunities.

From a Biblical perspective, while humility is a virtue encouraged by Scripture (James 4:10), the forced imposition of humility through deprivation is contrary to the Christian doctrine of free will and personal stewardship. True humility is a fruit of the Holy Spirit, cultivated through a genuine relationship with God (Galatians 5:22-23).

However, the luxurious and hedonistic excess among the populace seems to be promoted and controlled by this group's agents behind the scenes. This promotion of materialism and indulgence can be seen as a precursor to the Antichrist, as indicated in the book of Daniel. Daniel states that the desolator should come on the wings of abominations: "And on the wing of abominations shall come one who makes desolate, until the decreed end is poured out on the desolator" (Daniel 9:27). This suggests that the current trends of rampant consumerism and moral degradation will pave the way for the rise of the Antichrist, who will exploit these conditions to establish his dominion.

Establishing Small Master Production

The Protocol further advocates for the re-establishment of small-scale production as a means to undermine large-scale manufacturers who, it claims, inadvertently stir public dissent against the government. "We shall re-establish small master production which will mean laying a mine under the private capital of manufacturers," the document states. This move is seen as a strategy to create a stable, obedient populace that is closely tied to the existing order.

In historical context, various political movements have attempted to break up large enterprises and promote smaller, more controllable units. For example, during the Cultural Revolution in China, there was a significant push towards decentralizing production and empowering small local communes. This approach was meant to eliminate the influence of large capitalist entities and bind people to the authority of the state.

Today, there is a noticeable trend towards supporting small businesses and local production, especially in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. While this support for local businesses is beneficial, it can also be seen as a strategy to reduce the influence of multinational corporations that might oppose their policies. However, this strategy contrasts sharply with the Biblical view of work and enterprise. The Bible supports the idea of stewardship and prosperity derived from honest labor and enterprise (Proverbs 31:10-31). Forced reorganization of economic structures for control undermines individual freedom and creativity, which are God-given.

Prohibition of Alcohol

The Protocol also addresses the issue of alcohol consumption, proposing that drunkenness be outlawed and severely punished. "Drunkenness also will be prohibited by law and punishable as a crime against the humanness of man," it asserts. This measure aims to prevent the moral degradation of society and maintain order.

While temperance is a principle found in the Bible (Ephesians 5:18), the enforcement of such behavior through harsh penalties rather than personal conviction and spiritual growth is problematic. True transformation comes from a heart changed by the Holy Spirit, not through oppressive laws (2 Corinthians 3:17).

Today, in many countries, there are stringent laws regulating alcohol consumption, with severe penalties for violations. While these laws aim to curb the negative social impacts of alcohol, they can also be seen as tools for governments to exert control over the populace. However, the current generation of young people, particularly Generation Z, seems to be heading in a different direction. There has been a noticeable promotion of alcohol and drugs, which appears to be fostering a nihilistic attitude among the youth. The influence of media, celebrities, and social platforms often glamorizes substance use, leading to increased normalization and acceptance. It's plausible that agents of this group are consciously managing these trends to weaken societal morals and create a more controllable, disillusioned population.

The Strong Hand of Authority

One of the most ominous aspects of Protocol 23 is the emphasis on the necessity of a strong, independent authority to command blind obedience. "Subjects, I repeat once more, give blind obedience only to the strong hand which is absolutely independent of them," it declares. This notion of absolute power is antithetical to the Biblical model of servant leadership exemplified by Christ (Mark 10:42-45).

Historically, totalitarian regimes have often relied on the consolidation of power in the hands of a single ruler or a small group, demanding absolute loyalty and obedience from their subjects. This approach leads to the suppression of dissent and the erosion of freedoms, as seen in various dictatorships throughout the 20th and 21st centuries.

Today, the rise of authoritarian leaders and governments around the world is a concerning trend. These leaders often consolidate power and demand unwavering loyalty from their citizens, using propaganda and fear to maintain control. The erosion of democratic principles and human rights in such contexts is a stark warning of the dangers of absolute power.

Additionally, there is growing evidence of top-down manipulation of global trends from behind the curtains. Shadowy figures and organizations exert influence over political, economic, and social systems to steer the world towards their desired outcomes. This manipulation often occurs through strategic use of media, economic pressure, and covert operations, further consolidating power in the hands of a few and eroding the autonomy of nations and individuals. The convergence of these factors presents a formidable challenge to liberty and justice worldwide.

The Rise of the Antichrist

Ultimately, Protocol 23 speaks of a supreme ruler who will replace all existing authorities, quench anarchy, and establish a new order. "The supreme lord who will replace all now existing rulers... must first of all proceed to quench this all-devouring flame," it states. This figure is depicted as a messianic leader who will demand total submission, echoing the Biblical portrayal of the Antichrist who will rise to power in the last days (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4).

For Christians, this prophecy is a stark reminder to remain steadfast in faith and vigilant against deception. Revelation 13 describes the rise of a beast with global authority, demanding worship and allegiance, which aligns with the portrayal in the Protocols. However, believers are called to resist such falsehoods and hold fast to the truth of the Gospel.

In today's global landscape, the increasing centralization of power and the emergence of influential global leaders with authoritarian tendencies can be seen as a prelude to the rise of the Antichrist. The push towards a one-world government and the erosion of national sovereignty are trends that align with the prophetic warnings in the Bible. Efforts for globalization are often justified by man-made global challenges, employing a problem-reaction-solution approach to gain public support. Issues such as climate change, pandemics, and economic crises are presented as global problems requiring centralized solutions, thereby accelerating the concentration of power and paving the way for a unified global authority.

Conclusion

The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, particularly Protocol 23, resonate with various historical and contemporary trends that aim to control and subjugate humanity under authoritarian regimes. Historically, regimes have employed similar tactics to maintain control over their populations, and these tactics continue to manifest in modern governance. Furthermore, there is growing evidence of top-down manipulation of global trends from behind the curtains. Shadowy figures and organizations exert influence over political, economic, and social systems to steer the world towards their desired outcomes, further give a clear picture of the desire direction. The emphasis on strong, independent authority and the rise of authoritarian leaders and authoritative nations around the world is particularly concerning, as it aligns with the Biblical portrayal of the Antichrist. The increasing centralization of power and the push towards a one-world government are trends that Christians are called to discern and resist, remaining steadfast in their faith and vigilant against deception. In these uncertain times, it is crucial for believers to draw near to God, seek His wisdom, and stand firm in the truth, exposing the deeds of darkness and proclaiming the light of Christ. As Romans 12:2 advises, "Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind."
